Those who believe that speakers should be heard and not seen have likely never laid eyes on Waterfall Audio's new Niagara speakers. The French company, which likens the craftsmanship in its designs to that of Lalique and Cartier, spent three years perfecting the look and performance of these 47-inch-tall loudspeakers ($54,000 per pair). The three-quarter-inch-thick diamond-glass casing reveals the speakers' drivers and glass horn tweeter. Like their design, the Niagara speakers' sound is vibrant and clear.
